The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1,2,6 & 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blumenthal.

Refer to fig. 3 of Blumenthal. An attenuator 310 for instance receives a test signal VBIST when in self test mode that may be read as the claimed calibration signal and outputs an attenuated version thereof; the attenuator 310 may thus be read as the like element claimed. An amplifier 304 receives the attenuated signal and may be read as the low noise amplifier claimed. The difference between the claims and Blumenthal is that comparator 312 in self-test (calibration) mode will compare the output of the amplifier 304 with the output of amplifier 354 however, not the calibration (self test) signal (VBIST) as claimed and the result is used to set the gain of the attenuator 310

(via a logic circuit 308 and the circuitry of fig. 6) rather than the amplifier as claimed.

However, since the output of amplifier 354 is, in self test mode, merely an attenuated/amplified self test (calibration) signal (VBIST) and the overall gain may be set by controlling either the attenuator or amplifier, the arrangements are functionally equivalent depending on the attenuation and amplification values used. These, and the gain/attenuation relationship of claims 2 & 7, are result effective variables in that the effect of changes in the gain or attenuation would have been known to one of ordinary skill in the art.

Claims 3-5 & 8-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
